Why choose St. Thomas More College?

St. Thomas More College (STM) provides students with an intimate scholarly setting within the larger USask campus. A combination of smaller class sizes, award-winning faculty, social activities, additional scholarship and bursary opportunities and an in-house chef for food offerings – ensure students enjoy an environment that is the best of both worlds for their university experience!

STM is academically integrated with the University of Saskatchewan, and in partnership with the College of Arts and Science, providing students with over 250 additional credit classes in the humanities and social sciences that they can select from – many unique to the campus. Any USask student may take STM courses as part of their USask degrees.

Discover More About STM:

Discover a college community where you will be challenged to think creatively and critically about social issues, where you will be taught to communicate effectively, and where you can discover the links between your personal and professional ambitions and the needs of our ever-changing society.

Best of Both Worlds:

For students in Arts and Science, you have the option to additionally ‘Self-Declare’ as an STM student. Essentially a dual-citizen of both STM and Arts and Science, you’ll have the ability to benefit from what both USask and STM have to offer.

As a ‘Self-Declared’ STM student you:

- have access to our additional scholarships and bursaries, totaling up to $200,000 each year!
- may apply for STM student employment opportunities.
- enjoy additional discounts at Choices cafeteria.
- have more transition support with our academic advisors and student services to have a successful first year.

Engaged Learning and Study Abroad

Community Service-Learning (CSL) at STM is a type of experiential learning which involves students partnering with community-based agencies to experience meaningful volunteer service along with reflection activities to help make the connections between their community experience and their university learning. Students can participate in CSL outside of their classes through the Service & Justice Project, or within selected STM classes.

Campus Ministry

At STM we believe it is important to provide students with opportunities to grow as a whole person. Our campus ministry team is available for you when you need a friendly person to talk with, when you have questions about faith and spirituality, and when you are looking for ways to get involved in the campus community.
